Dear Miss Whitney:

So I am to have double gains from my early purchase of Trakeme! Him I have enjoyed throughout these years, + now you are to be added.
That is just good fortune.
I would far rather receive from you your own volume than his.

How brave of you to obey the voice at once obeyed at prime, & claim of your own voices which were written so long ago & under such different conditions that they must sometimes seem to you the utterances of another person.

They ought to give you great satisfaction, both through showing how far you have travelled & how much you know at starting.
I wish Alice were here to applaud the venture.

Always Sincerely yours,

S. W. Calver

May I ask you to increase the volume of your book by writing your name in it?
